

Her idea worked. Hoppy thought eggs were the most delicious food ever! She was a really happy bunny! Then one day as Hoppy was eating, she decided that everyone should have a chance to try these yummy eggs. So she shared her idea with the little girl who agreed. The little girl said, "I think we should color them so they are beautiful. Then everybody will want to try them." Hoppy responded, "I think that is the greatest idea ever, and it will be so much fun!" So the two set off to work coloring all the eggs they could find in the chicken coop. They turned out amazingly beautiful. Each one was so unique with a design all its own. Then one night while the little girl slept, Hoppy collected all of the colorful eggs in a basket. She began delivering them to the neighbors all around. She hid some in their yards, left some near their front doors, and even put a few in tiny little buckets or baskets she found in some of the yards. Then she returned home and went to sleep. The little girl never even noticed she was gone. The next morning, the neighbors woke up and discovered these beautiful eggs. They began to peel them and eat them. Everyone was thrilled with the eggs, especially the children. Hoppy felt amazing! She decided she would start a new tradition and deliver these eggs once a year. Now you know how Easter started; Hoppy Easter to you!
